WELL BEGUN.

The refusal of the VANDEBRILT people to repair upper Madison avenue between the tracks of the Fourth avenue street-car line was bold, direct violation of faith, and would be enough ground for revocation of the Company's charter. No corporation, no matter how much wealth is behind it, should consider its engraftment upon the city sufficient warrant for such defiance.

The Madison avenue right of way was a cift compared with which the few conditions imposed are triffing. The VANDEBBILTS can well afford to put in order the middle of all the streets through which their road runs, and should be made to do it whether they 'ean afford it or not.

Carriage travel in Harlem has a right equal to that in the lower parts of town to the protection which the street railway charters provide. No power should avail to evade the fulfilment of those conditions. Commissioner Grenov, who has ordered this work done and will see to it that the VANDERBILTS settle the bill, deserves commendation for prompt-

Now let him attend to the famous Huckleberry line which runs to Fordham. The condition of its tracks is a disgrace and an imposition. THE EVENING WORLD has said so before, and what hinders the enforcement of law upon that rich paying railroad is more than any one can tell.

Treat them all alike.

A DUTY THAT IS PLAIN.

The London dock companies will find small sympathy in their cry for police protection. Perhaps the law entitles them to it, but they do not merit it upon grounds of justice. They are like the pig-headed fellow who invites some one to hit him. Every voice in England, whether of press or people, capital or what not, has been lifted in condemnation of the companies' course. Shipowners even contemplate an appeal to Parliament to annul their charter. The right and wrong of the case seem plain enough.

If the dock companies really desire peace and safety, they can secure them more easily by yielding to the decent demands upon which the strike hinges. If they persist, in defiance of everybody's cry, to invite violence, they may be sure they will get it. Nor is the threat of a policemen's billy apt to mollify the half-starved dockmen. These piggish companies owe it to the peace and safety of London, as well as to the strikers, to give up.

The cost of their obstinacy may prove a terrible one.

GOVERNMENT BY CALVINISM.

President Ban said to his fellow Presby. terians at the Log College anniversary yesterday: Steadfastness is our characteristic. Our enemies call it obstinacy, and there are occasions when even that trait has its uses.

Now we understand many things. We begin to understand BEN himself, and also his partiality to Surplus-Spoiler TANNER, he of the wide and sonorous mouth. They are both Presbyterians in politics. There is a host of office-hunters who have this Calvinistic virtue, too, and BEN respects it wherever he finds it.

Stick to it, boys. Pound away at the portals of office. The President believes that Bible saying : "Yet by reason of thine importunity shall he rise and let thee in."

DEATH OF PRINCE HAL. HARRY W. GENET is dead. His career was a striking one, to which the quiet commonplaceness of its ending is in strong contrast. He was a prominent figure in scenes which are now become historical. An English Syndicate to Buy Up All Our Dime Museums.

Barnum and Bailey the Originators of the Scheme.

Living Curiosities to Be Paid with British Gold.

A flutter of excitement was caused in Wall street this morning by the news that a Freak " Trust had been formed in London. and that a rich English syndicate, like the one which bought so many American breweries, was about to buy all living wonders in the United States, and to control and manage the entire number of American "freaks." So eager was the syndicate, it was said, that the only freaks it had not succeeded in obtaining control of were freaks of imagination and freaks of fancy. It seems that Messra, P. T. Barnum and James Bailey who are thoroughly competent business men in everything pertaining to freaks of nature and living curiosities, are about to form a syndicate to gain control of all the principal dime museums of the United States. Mr. Bailey sails for London next month to interest English capitalists in the project. Both stock and bonds will be issued on the museums, which will be capitalized on the basis of their drawing powers. If, for example, a museum clears $500 a week, it will be capitalized at a round sum, though it contains only a fat woman and a kangaroo.

Mr. P. T. Barnum and Mr. James Bailey will be the American managers of the syndicate. The present museum owners will be employed by the Dime Museum Trust addirectors of its many places of amusement Gov. Braven has waked at last and added and interest.

The foreign syndicate will not only absorb all the dime museums of the country, but it will have an absolute monopoly of all the wonderful freaks of nature and all the living

Every one knows what a freak of fancy is. yet many readers may not know what a freak of nature is. Judging from the number of her freaks in the dime museums, nature must her freaks in the dime museums, nature must have many eccentric moods.

To give a few examples: An alligator boy, an India-rubber man, a living skeleton and a Circassian grl are "freaks of nature." A "living curiosity" is always a "freak of nature." but a "freak of nature" is not necessarily "a living curiosity," as it may be a deceased curiosity. The Egyptian king it the apparent who has not retered for in the nuseum, who has not reigned for 3,000 years, is a dead curiosity; but the ossified negro, who looks like an ancient Egyptian king awakened, is a living curiosity.

The great English Freak Trust will make a cruel monopoly. Freaks of nature are like land. They are limited. They cannot be in-creased or diminished. It is easy to see that the syndicate of English capitalists may get possession of all the American freaks of nature and charge the American public what it pleases for the pleasure of looking at its living skeletons, its

the American public what it pleases for the pleasure of looking at its living skeletons, its ossified men and alligator boys.

It will cost twice as much to see giants and fat women. Living skeletons will advance 100 per ceut. The kangaroo and the gyascutus will be beyond the reach of the poor. Some museums will close up and others will supply a chesp line of curiosities.

The facts in regard to the Fresk Trust were made public by Mr. Balley's brother.in.law. Prof. J. S. McFadden, M. A., Li. D., who is a lecturer in Kohn & Middl-ton's dime museum in Minneapolis, Minn.

Prof. McFadden says that the English syndicate proposes to raise $2,000,000 for the purpose of absorbing all the American dime museums and absolutely controlling all our freaks. Kohn, Middleton & Co., who have some of the most remarkable living curiosities that walk, have been offered $300,000 for their six dime museums in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Cincinnati and Chicago.

Prof. Worth, of New York, and the owners of the Grand Street Museum, have received flattering offers from the syndicate. At the present moment everything is uncertain in the world of freaks.

She was married yesterday to "Bagdad' Levland, whose paps and mamma sport bars sinister on their respective coats of arms. The wedding was solemnized in St. George's Church, Hanover Square, London, and only a score of family friends looked on, Miss Josephine Chamberlain acting as bridesmaid and Percy Lamling as best man. The bride is a Cleveland girl of twenty-four years, and is descended from sterling Americans all around, her great grandfather having been born in Brattleboro. Vt. Se'ah Chamberlain, who resped a cold million out of the berlain, who reaped a cold million out of the Minnesota State bonds years ago, and was in 1872 Democratic candidate for Congress for the Cleveland district, is her great-uncle, and Hiram Willson, United States Circuit

Judge under r'resident Pierce, was her maternal grandfather.

Miss Chamberlain has been a conspicuous American belle in London society for several seasons, her beauty, piquancy and thorough Yankee independence being marked. The Prince of Wales was her adorer. This was distasteful to her, and it was once said that she addressed him as "Jumbo," to humiliate him.

This she denied afterwards, adding pointedly: "I can rid myself of a nuisance without resorting to an unladylike affront."

She was no butterfly to be fascinated by the candle of aristocracy, and she has married one of the most popular men in the British army.

The bride was stately in her wedding gown of heavy white satin, embroidered with silver and pearls, and the train bordered by orange blossoms. A veil of fine tulle, reaching to the end of the train, was surmounted by a wreath of these emblematic flowers.

The beauty of Miss Chamberlain is, said to be indescribable. It is enough that her porbe indescribable. It is enough that her por-Detective Smith's Method of Extracting a Confession from a Murderer.

Cut Off Both His Ears and Riddled Him with Bullets.

The Detective Now on Trial for Murder in Fayette County, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 6.—The trial of L. R. Smith, a railroad detective, for the murder of Henry Jackson, a negro murderer whom he had arrested, is going on in Fay ette County to-day,

His alleged crime followed upon the brutal murder and robbery of a white man in Aberdeen, Miss., last December. For a long time the case was a mystery to the police, but suspicion finally fell on Jackson, who had suddenly disappeared, A big reward was offered for his arrest, and many amateur detectives took an interest in County, Ala.

Finally Smith, tempted by the reward, went to work on the case and succeeded in capturing Jackson last January in Walker when he arrived in Aberdeen he was alone. He said that while on his way a gang of masked men had taken his prisoner from him and lynched him by hanging him on a tree.

It turned out, however, that this story was not true. The day after Smith had arrested Jackson the latter crawled into a farmer's house in Fayette County in a horrible state
